Creating an Outline for Your Article

Title (and Authors)
- Make this as catchy as possible
- Your reader will read this first then decide if he or she will continue reading the rest of the article

Introduction
- Introduce the problem you will be discussing or write a short story of your experience with the problem

Body: this includes
- Materials and methods
- Results (use of visual graphics?)
- Discussion
- Acknowledgments and references

Abstract (and title?)
- Consider writing this after the completion of the article
- This may help more accurately align the abstract/title to the central theme of the article
